“ Sending my condolences to Mark’s family and friends. Where do I even begin?!? You were my alarm clock for work, you hated my messenger tone of the laughing baby and I can still hear you say “oh gosh I hate that sound”; followed by your infectious laugh . You were my partner, my dear friend. I’m wearing the pajama pants you got me as I’m writing this. I’m still waiting for my phone to ring. Heyyyy you awake !?!
😭😭 Work won’t be the same with out youm I miss you so much . All our laughs and talks on our morning and afternoon runs. Gosh my heart hurts so bad. Mike misses his buddy Mark too. I put your picture in the van today and then a cardinal flew by. I know it was you saying hi. Life is literally so unfair. I’m going to miss seeing you dressed as an Eskimo this winter. Heck, even in the summer, you had on “layers”; the container I brought you your food in is still in my jeep. I haven’t been able to take it out yet. When I took it out before, I’d bring it inside to fill it with food that I made. See you on the other side my friend.
Love you always 💖
